

Hun Prepares For Siege

The All-Round Pressure That Will Be Exerted With Increasing Intensity

John L. Garvin, editor of the London Observer, believes that the German war caste will struggle for the last gasp a year at least, and will try to cover it. Kinds of people to fight to the last gasp before yielding to indisputable terms. That is a popular opinion for the time being, so far as the Hun is concerned, but there is no time for the deluded nation to execute in the circumstances of next spring and summer.

Ultimately there will be an extensive German retreat in the east, but not before the occupied Slav areas have served a useful purpose. The Hun will be compelled to make little regard to the local inhabitants, or to natural rights of any kind, grain and stock will be swept into the Hun's stores for another six or nine months. German boys will be called upon.

In this way, with the weapon fact, in full blast, the enemy rightly expects to keep a huge force afoot in spite of all, and to effect prodigies in the use of tuning out equipment during the winter.

Genghis Khan has explained to an American interviewer that France at this moment has its finest fighting force, and that it is larger than ever and will of course have an artillery, more than proportionately greater. When it is remembered that the Hun's forces of the public will be concentrated and applied on a shorter line, the reader will agree that the Germans imagine effecting victory with the contemplated the elimination of France.

Moreover, the British and the French mean to break the Germans if they have to make a difficult alliance with the Germans, larger than ever and will of course have an artillery, more than proportionately greater. When it is remembered that the Hun's forces of the public will be concentrated and applied on a shorter line, the reader will agree that the Germans imagine effecting victory with the contemplated the elimination of France.

This is why Mr. Garvin says the Allies' general offensive is but a prelude at present, by comparison with the all-round pressure that will be exercised with increasing intensity from now to next summer, if need be. The Allies will have down any German counter-attack, and resolute means to crush any word on converging lines, they are determined to effect a thorough settlement on German soil.

Germany, by infinite violence and arrogance, has herself created what otherwise could by no possibility have existed—the greatest of recorded alliances with a combination of power and will, and up to a certain point will be remorseless. That is the real monster unwittingly called into big battle by the Hun. Frankfort. He will make earnest efforts to avoid being devoured by his own creation, but the efforts will be with out avail.

Language of the Britons

Many Words Have Been Borrowed, But the Basis is the Anglo-Saxon

The people living in what is now known as England when Julius Caesar and his Roman soldiers crossed the Channel from Gaul (now France), belonged to the Celtic stock which overran a great part of Western Europe. The Gauls, who occupied Gaul at that time, were conquered by Caesar, about half a century before the birth of Christ, were Celts and were closely related to the ancient Britons. The language of the Britons differed from that spoken by the Celts, who spoke different dialects.

The Gaelic spoken in the Highlands of Scotland is a Celtic language. The founders of Britain, the Anglo-Saxons, the language brought to the island by the Anglo or Angli, and other tribes, who came from the Jutes, Frisians, and Franks.

They were of Teutonic stock, but belonged to a branch of the family widely different from that which occupied the soil of Britain.

We commonly speak the language of those invaders as Anglo-Saxon. An Englishman today, with an ordinary education, would not be able to understand if spoken. It was the speech of England when the Normans came in 1066 and brought the French language, which had been spoken in England for several generations, although Saxon or Old English of the time remained the language of the people. The English language grew with the Old English, and "he latter developed into the Middle Age English, and "he latter developed into Modern English as spoken and written today.

It was brought into England from French, and through the French, from the Latin, and has borrowed many words from the Greek, especially words applying to science. But the basis is the Anglo-Saxon.

It was seen hobbling down a flight of steps, and torn and tattered. "Enough," we said, "to hold the shreds together. It was a pitiable sight. So curiosity was aroused, "What are you?" it was asked, "and how came you to be in such a condition?" "I am a reputation," the wretch replied, "and I have just been released from a female bridge whilst."

Romania in History

Her Place in European History Has Always Been an Honourable One

Though Romania up to the nineteenth century does not appear to have played a conspicuous part in the advance of civilization, her place in European history is an honorable one, and, if less spectacular than those of her neighbors, her achievements are no less remarkable.

George Young, the pioneer of the Red River Settlements, arrived in the colony to the northward of Winnipeg recently made the following remark to the writer:

"I can remember, the day Rev. George Young arrived in the colony, the next Sunday he preached in a log building near the Great Company's store at Fort Garry."

Starving Syria

Christian Natives Have Been Bitterly Persecuted Since the War Began

This year marks the 400th anniversary of the conquest of Syria by the Turks, but the inhabitants are certainly not in a mood for celebrating that event. Hard as it is for them to bear, the world is under similar conditions, and Anatolia.

By their stubborn resistance to the Ottomans, invaders, Romanians in common with the other peoples inhabiting Eastern Europe, fell into the hands of the Turks, who were then a miserable lot, since they are clothed in rags and given only small amounts of food.

As a result of the war, the Romanians, by their determined stand, have been persecuted to the point of being driven from their homes.

There is a name sacred to all the Balkan nations that resisted Turkish rule. It was in 1839 that Mircea the Great, King of Wallachia, led the united Balkan armies against the Turks. The battle was lost; the vanquished were placed under tribute, but their fight against their conquerors was not yet over.

Like a great watershed, these little nations held the Ottoman waves in check, and left western Europe free from Moslem incursions. Until 1877 the tribute imposed five centuries earlier following the battle of Mircea was still paid by the Romanians.

The offer of help from the United States tended to the Turkish government that month, but the Turkish army, which had been sent to Anatolia, was informed that relief operations were unnecessary in Syria because crops there were good, and there was no urgent emergency at Constantinople.

Similarly, an east end gentleman found himself short handed though this man hit upon a solution of the problem.

He happened to possess a pet parrot, and this bird he placed in the outer part of his shop and trained it to call out to him on any emergency by way of the street door.

The parrot very quickly learned his lesson, with the result that its master, no longer afraid to leave his shop, could go about his business, and customers, knowing he could count upon his new assistant to warn him of danger.

The intelligence of dogs is known to everyone, but a dog as a golf caddie is somewhat of a novelty, you will say. Nevertheless, this real caddie, which works on the links of a well known course. Besides carrying clubs, the dog proves himself useful in the search for lost golf balls, nosing about until he is successful.

There is another dog, in one of the London suburbs, which helps his master to look after the poultry.

When told to do so, this clever collie will trot off and collect the eggs, which he has laid, turn them over, and lay them at its master's feet without even cracking the delicate shells.

How good would guess that such insignificant little fellows as white mice could be of any real service to men. But as a matter of fact, these mice are of great service to the life savers in certain circumstances.

It may surprise you to know that the utility of the white mouse has been demonstrated by a recent report.

This took the form of a recommendation that these creatures should be supplied for use in mines as a test of the purity of the subterranean air.

Liquor Advertising

Quite a number of the local papers in the province are displaying large multi-order liquor advertising, and are receiving practically double the usual advertising rate for doing so. The majority of the papers, however, have refused to accept such advertising and in consequence are losing hundreds of dollars a year for principle sake. The business men of the province are realizing the benefits of prohibition in business, but too often the newspaper man, who did as much as anyone to bring about prohibition, who lost hundreds of dollars' worth of advertising during the campaign, and who again turning down temptation offers from the multi-order liquor firms, is entirely ignored so far as advertising is concerned, by the local merchant.

"We have an idea, which we are almost too modest to mention, that those who claim to believe in the principle of 'Render to Caesar his due,' should allow the newspapers to share in the prosperity that has come largely through their efforts.

"It was reported that the Calgary Alberta last year made more money for the local of liquor advertising by the loyalty of the advertising public to that paper. The papers in the smaller towns have not fared so well, but are hundreds of dollars out of pocket as the result of their loyalty to principle."

"This above is from the pen of Rev. R. K. Peck, editor of the Stavely Advertiser, and represents a condition found in this province generally. During the prohibition campaign we approached local merchants, urging them to give us increased advertising support, so as to enable us to take the right stand in the campaign. They refused to transact our paper; so we took an independent or neutral stand and required that each party pay for space occupied. During the whole campaign we never expressed ourselves editorially as in favor of or opposed to the new legislation; but had the merchants been favoring it with the support necessary we certainly would have endorsed prohibition."

The same may be said in regard to the local versus foreign advertising. If the local merchant would support the local paper as he should, the acceptance of foreign advertising would not be necessary. A month or so ago we announced that unless the local merchants would come through with greater advertising support we would be obliged to accept the foreign advertising contract, but at a higher rate than was required from the local merchant. For years we have given space to defend the local merchant against the mail-order house, but the local merchants have never attempted to appreciate our efforts and we are obliged to accept support from elsewhere.

New Peace
River Pamphlet

The Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, has just issued—through its Railway Lands Branch—a very comprehensive pamphlet dealing with that new Mecca of the landseer, the Peace River country.

Time will a few pioneer settlers have from time to time punctuated this portion of Northern Canada, it has only been within the past few years that it has been possible to regard the great Peace River Valley as within the reach of the homeseeker. The almost insurmountable difficulty in taking in supplies and machinery, and the corresponding task of marketing the crop rendered this fertile area of Canada's hinterland a veritable "terra incognita."

While—it has been said—but few have explored this district, many will be surprised to learn that so long ago as 1876, grain from the Peace River captured the trophy in competition with the world at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia.

This publication deals with all the subjects which naturally suggest themselves to the average inquirer. Under the headings of Agriculture, Timber, Minerals, Game, and Transportation the pamphlet gives a mass of information. Climate and rainfall are also treated of. Numerous extracts are given from the reports of well known explorers and scientists who have visited the country, dating from the beginning of the last century, down to the present day. There is a concensus of opinion among these authorities as to the adaptability of the country to the growth of all grains and root crops. The great amount of sun-shine which obtains in these northern latitudes renders vegetation both rapid and luxuriant.

In the Peace River district the seasons change very quickly, so that as soon as the snow passes the ground is ready for sowing. The soil in some places, consists of a rich black loam. In others it varies from a blue clay with a top soil of sandy loam, much desired by wheat growers.

Vegetables attain a large size. During a large part of the winter season cattle and horses may remain outdoors.

It is a country adapted both to mixed farming and ranching.

This useful publication is being distributed free of charge by the Halfway Lands Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

A Disappointed Bride

One of the brides to be in this country ordered her wedding stationery from the Upper Canada firm, and although the marriage is to take place soon, the stationery has not arrived. Moral—order from The Journal office and avoid disappointment. First class stock and prompt attention.—Oxford Journal.

When the above marriage takes place we wonder if this bride will get the white of the wedding from this Upper Canada firm? Of course she won't, and then she'll reasonably expect the newspaper which has ignored in her wedding stationery to give her a great "send-off" and say how sweetly pretty she was looking at the stately function called together by the "Upper Canada firm" wedding stationery.

This is a matter that intending brides all over the country should seriously consider—and so should the newspapers too.—Toro News.

Local and General

The British have captured 10,000 Huns in the vicinity of Ancre.

Mrs. H. C. Morrison, of Cowley, is visiting her sister, Miss Fulton, here.

Lieut. H. J. Goode, of Lethbridge, has been killed in action in the Somme battle.

The annual meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross Society was held in Central Union church last night, report of which will appear in our next issue.

The Canadian Bulletin claims to have been threatened with "suit for damages." What poor fool could expect to get anything out of such action. Surely he must have been very poorly advised.

J. E. Gillis, solicitor, left for an eastern point by Wednesday evening's train, and we understand will return with a double head. Lawyer gain some, Joe!

Members of the committee and others interested are reminded of the regular meeting of the Patriotic Fund to be held in The Enterprise office on Monday night next.

A new way to kill the rats which infest the trenches is reported by a South African officer writing from France. He says: "We found one of our men putting a bit of cheese on his bayonet and firing a rifle every time a rat started to eat it."

Five convictions for infractions of the new liquor act were recorded at High River one day this week, when fines aggregating over $500 went to the coffers of the provincial treasurer.

We are told that the proper pronunciation of "Somme" is something close to "seem," which reminds us of the American in London who remarked to a Britisher, after reading an account of the Somme fight: "Some fight?" "Yes," replied the Englishman, "and some don't."

Alberta is expected to raise half a million dollars for the Patriotic Fund this year. Quite right too, but the trouble is that that amount will be raised by people who pay over and over again, while many of the people in the province never subscribe a red cent towards the worthy cause.

At a recent meeting of the Lethbridge Board of Trade it was pointed out that the present service on the Crow line west is the poorest Lethbridge has had in ten years, and in view of the amount of traffic on the line, the board thought it quite right to ask a resumption of the through day trains between Medicine Hat and Cranbrook. The PAs in general would benefit by the resumption of such service, and it is hoped that the joint petitions of the boards of trade and other bodies in the south will receive deserved consideration from the railway people.

R. L. Norman, editor of The Coleman Bulletin, states that he was opposed to the adoption of the present liquor act—but why. What about the $1000 he was willing to accept to come out on the side of the liquor interests? Were he not a "Judas" he would never think of the title. We feel that it is unnecessary for us to waste space in our paper to tell the public any more about the calibre of R. L. Norman than they already know, and further that if time and space would be better occupied in the interest of some philanthropic enterprises than resorting to pell-mell slandering, which would interest none.

Ask For BUSINESS

Only one's most intimate friends go to one's home uninvited, and the extent of one's calling list is determined by the number of one's calls

In business the same facts hold. Every merchant in this town knows scores of families here and in the country round about, whose customs he does not possess. Mutual acquaintance is the first step towards getting these families as customers, and acquaintances can most surely be developed by invitations or calls made through the medium of advertising in the Blairmore Weekly Enterprise.

To The Merchants

Show your desire for business by asking for it. A merchant who does not ask for business is supposed not to want it very keenly.

General Botha
Sternly Resolute

An Incident of the South African Campaign

How determined the resolute General Botha is can be illustrated by a story which Mr. Harold Spender tells in his life of the great South African soldier. Mrs. Botha, the latest star of the South African war, Mrs. Botha spared no efforts in her role of peacemaker. General Botha, however, was not always in the mood to listen to her. There were moments when he by no means welcomed Mrs. Botha as a messenger of peace.

"She had only gone a few miles when the trap was sprung," says Spender. "She was soon back into the British lines and reported herself to the British General, who had let her through. He told her to go back to Pretoria. 'I am not going to blow up the railway,' she remarked. 'You must leave me.' Botha had just arranged a batman. 'You must get back as soon as you can,' he said. 'I am blowing up the line.'

Two Kinds of Water From One Well

Ordinary Water and Brine
Pumped From One Well
in Florida

The geologists of the United States Geological Survey have lately discovered a well at Welaka, on the St. Johns River, Florida, which contains two kinds of water. It is 309 feet deep. It was first drilled to a depth of 160 feet, from which depth oil was observed. The well was then carried to a depth of 309 feet, where it opened a vein of water that has a strong briny taste. In order to use both kinds of water, an inner tubing was run nearly to the bottom of the well. Both that and the outer casing have been broken, so that ordinary water and mineral water can be pumped at the same time. A favorite joke played on visitors is to give them a glass of brine to drink. They then, if they ask for more, a glass of the brine. In an investigation of the underground waters of the country, the geologists have found not more than half a dozen wells of that kind, but there is no reason why they should not be common in regions where the waters in the upper strata differ from those that lie deeper.

Advice to Clergymen
Why don't clergymen who are unequal to composing good sermons for themselves and in the nature of things there must be a good many of them, take a few pages of their valuable homilies provided for them by the church? Or why don't they frankly read someone else's sermon exists nowadays—the man who, in the opinion of the author, is the author of the "original" sermon in manuscript for a trifling fee. It is on record that Coleridge, when he was a boy, sold his "original" sermon in this way. How much would a sermon in Coleridge's handwriting fetch at Sotheby's today?—London Chronicle.

WORKS BOTH WAYS

Whatever the idea, the Teutons are setting a precedent full of danger for the side likely to be defeated. In case the entente troops should be victorious, the Teutons will be in the Siegesle. It might become a question of expatriating, by way of making stronger allied frontiers, a few more German immigrants in Alsace, which has thriven since the last war at the expense of the inhabitants, and it is to the treatment. So does the German-speaking element which practices economic parasitism on the unfortunate Slavs of Bohemia, Galicia and Poland. What would the Teutons make if a finally victorious enemy should not disdain to apply the Teuton's own approved and sanctioned practices upon them? Eviction was a bad game for them to start.

To Continue Exploration of the New Northland

Stefansson has received by G. J. Debster, the deputy minister of the Stefansson northern exploration party, who some time reached Nome. The letter gives additional details of the Stefansson party's movements and supplies some information as to Stefansson's future movements.

The letter states that Stefansson's plan had been to make a northward circuit around the new land, which he discovered a year ago, with the object of discovering its extent and whether any territory existed north of there.

As a result of the fact that his ships did not succeed in getting far enough north, he had to turn back, so he turned back with his dogs, the explorer was unable to carry out his design. He had reached his new land last May, but it was not until the winter of 1913-14 that he reached the village of Winter Harbour, on the Melville Island. The schooner Polar Bear, one of the vessels of the expedition, was expected to return to the summer and form a winter base.

Kent Chapman, one of the members of the Stefansson party who travelled by the overland route, instead of going to Nome with the rest of his companions, has reached the Arctic and is now working for the Geological Survey Department. Mr. Chapman, who was topographer with the expedition, travelled south by way of the Mackenzie and Athabasca rivers.

It is, therefore, against the German people as a whole that our race is making war, and not against the Rumanian or isolated Imperialism. TRAINING AND A GOOD PARTNER WILL MAKE STRONG COMBINATION

WIFE HELPS THE SOLDIER-FARMER TO SUCCEED
The Government Is Making a Special Monetary Allowance in Addition to the Pension, for the Maintenance of Both the Soldier and His Family, While he is Receiving Elementary Training

"What makes you think you will succeed as a farmer?"

The question was asked of a returned soldier who had expressed a very strong desire to get on the land.

"My wife," he answered.

"Do you mean to say she persuaded you?"

"No, I didn't need any persuading. But she wants to go as much as I do."

"Does she understand what it means?"

"She ought. She was born and brought up on a farm; she is not afraid of hard work; and she prefers to live in the country anyway."

"The soldier's sake?"

"We've got none, worse luck. No, she likes it better herself."

"The soldier is a bit of a wuss."

He was not a fair boy himself, and he does not imagine that the little experience he possesses is enough. It is therefore taking advantage of the various opportunities such as gardening and poultry raising, already started by the Military Hospital Commission at some of the Government Hospitals; and he aims at taking courses, extra instruction later on at one of the agricultural schools.

A soldier, some time ago, the Government asked special allowances, in addition to the pension, for the maintenance of both the soldier and his family while he is being trained for his future occupation; so no man should have the slightest hesitation about taking full advantage of the training put at his disposal, to increase his capacity and better his position.

A trained man, and a wife both experienced and willing, make a team that beats.

It is most interesting to see that this fact has been recognized in a most practical way in England. There the Government decided, a few months ago, to make by experiment, three pioneer farms of experts—of soldiers—or rather "ex-service men"; for even the man now "proudly" serving, will have his chance of ploughing the land.

The President of the Board of Agriculture has just announced that in selected settlers, for these colonies, preference will be given to certain men of equal merit and qualifications to those whose wives, sisters, or daughters have acquired proficiency in agriculture, farm operations, as the result of their experience on the land either before or during the war.

As a matter of fact, women in the Old Country have taken a large and even extraordinary share in working the farms, which the war has deprived so many of their male laborers. Women in every social rank have volunteered to do this, and have kept their pledge, though many of them, not only quite unaccustomed to manual labor, but even lacking any necessity to work at all.

Canadian women, the vast majority of them, have never been in that position, and have always been familiar to them, and to a large number, even of the town-dwellers among them were brought up on farms. Many of the returned soldiers therefor, in their desire to get back to the land will have a great advantage in the experience of their wives as well as in the special training offered them.

Special training is given, of course, for a variety of other industries. The greatest care is taken to choose the occupations best suited each man's ability. But unquestionably, agriculture is the great national industry and needs the energies of every man qualified to undertake it.

To Advertise Butter

The National Dairy Council, according to reports sent out by the secretary, is planning to follow the example of the orange and raisin grower, and put on an extensive advertising campaign to cover three years, spending at the rate of $20,000 a month. This money will be used in advertising the various countries in the increase of the consumption of dairy products permanently; and if the supply can be increased to take care of the demand, the cost of an advance in prices, the results will be satisfactory—Wallace's Farmer.

Captain Koenig's "Sacrifices"

Captain Koenig, of Germany, Deutschland, had recently left Balaklava, and might have made a nice little $1,000. He was offered, for example, $1,000 a night by a show if he would appear on the stage. He was offered $50,000 to go to America for liberty to accompany him in his voyage across the Atlantic. He was offered $500 to have over some persons connected with him to come. He was invited to marry a lady who would have given him a handsome reward for his name. All of which Captain Koenig declined. But he did say that when peace is proclaimed he will return to the United States. He sees more money there.

How Britain Cares For Her Soldiers

Former French Minister Louis Adolphe Brissot, formerly French minister, has returned to Paris from a visit to the British Isles, and is giving an interesting description of how a great army is administered in the field.

Bukowina Duchy a Place But Little Known

Sandwiched in Between Galicia and the Northwestern Frontier of Transylvania.

When the present war first visited Rumania, a young American, with a high-pitched accent, lives in the memory, greeted him on board a Danube steamer with the question, "What is ever the name of that place?" quotes a special correspondent of the London Times. As it happened, he had, and this knowledge, the traveller, however, was not studying European history, and his route was a far-sighted manner with a view to becoming an authority not upon past but upon future history. Some day, he will be a historian.

They are all well known terms of the New York underworld. The city of Calgary has been notified by the Alberta government that the provincial authorities can not hand over to the city any portion of the fines imposed in the city police court for infraction of the new Prohibition Act. The city had requested the government to remit to it some portion of the fines, owing to the expense, to which the police force is being put to enforce the new law. The province bases its refusal on the fact that the law as passed by the people and the legislature provides that all proceeds from fines shall go to the general funds of the province and asserts that it is powerless to alter this. The letter was received by the City Council with a good deal of hospitality, and it is not improbable that the Council will instruct the police force to refuse to make any arrests or to issue summonses for infractions of the act.
